Nature

La Garrotxa provides the opportunity to enjoy yourself in the open air, a chance to relax in charming farmhouse accommodation or simply the delights of a good meal. Check out the guide to services on page 59 for more details.

La Garrotxa lies landlocked in north-east Catalonia: for the most part the land is under 600 m a.s.l., although its highest peaks top the 1,500 m mark.

Two totally different types of landscapes can be enjoyed in La Garrotxa. On the one hand, over 40 volcanoes and numerous lava flows cover much of the southern half of the and give rise to a rolling landscape – today protected by the La Garrotxa Volcanic Zone Natural Park – lacking any major relief features. To the north of the river Fluvià, however, the landscape changes radically. Abrupt cliffs and narrow gorges herald the entrance to the Alta Garrotxa, an area that has been declared an Area of Natural Interest; in the west of the the areas of the mountains of Collsacabra and Puigsacalm have likewise been protected as Areas of Natural Interest.

The flat Bas, Hostoles and Bianya valleys provide a change from the encircling mountains, but are surrounded by some of the thickest and most extensive forests in Catalonia. The sunniest slopes are covered by evergreen holm oaks, whilst elsewhere there are significant downy oak forests – with a few stands of pedunculate oak around Olot – and beech forests in the coolest, most humid corners of the .

Culture

La Garrotxa is a reflection of a culture in its purest state

A journey through La Garrotxa along an imaginary time line would take us back 2,000 years to the Capsacosta Roman road, the medieval architectural legacy of Besalú and Santa Pau, the Remences revolt in the Bas and Hostoles valleys, and the thriving Jewish call (quarter) in Besalú, boasting the only mikvah (ritual purification baths) known in the Spanish State.

Olot boasts the renaissance cloister of El Carme, examples of Art Nouveau and Noucentista art, the delights of the Catalan school of landscape art and its tradition in the creation of religious images.

Some of the most original and relevant artistic creations in Catalan art first saw the light of day in La Garrotxa.

The comarca also has a long tradition in the creation of nativity scenes. The Pessebres Vivants (dramatised nativity scenes) that are performed around Christmas, together with the exhibitions of nativity scenes, are some of the best-attended local events during the festive season.

A visit to the museums, collections and La Garrotxa Interpretation Centre will provide a detailed view of the history and natural and cultural heritage of this splendid comarca.

Gastronomy

In La Garrotxa there are restaurants for all tastes, for lovers of fine cuisine and local products, indigenous and traditional.

In the midst of the rugged landscapes of La Garrotxa, there is a fertile land whose cuisine is the envy of many. A region's cuisine is only as good as the ingredients that it employs and every season in La Garrotxa has its specialities. Indeed, every gardener and farmer who tends a vegetable patch adds to the riches of local gastronomic traditions and in many cases is perhaps unaware of his or her contribution to the cultural heritage of the region.

We can wax lyrical about the onions grown in the shadow of the volcano Montsacopa, renown for their sweetness, the potatoes that are being sown again in the rich soils of La Vall d'en Bas, the delightfully light haricot beans from Santa Pau, and the aromatic truffles found in the woods of La Garrotxa. We should not forget either to mention the buckwheat used to make farinetes, a typical local dessert much appreciated in winter, the local charcuterie, the ratafia, a local herbal liquor, and the yellow and white varieties of maize used to make the tasty semolina-like farro.

One of the ambassadors and prime movers of local gastronomy in La Garrotxa is the group Cuina Volcanic, who have been actively promoting the cuisine of this comarca throughout Catalonia for more than 20 years. Also active in the comarca are Besalú Gastronòmic, an association that promotes the history of this town through its cuisine, and Cuina Remença, whose aim is to reflect the region's traditions and people in its cookery. Furthermore, some of the best guidebooks to the restaurants of Catalonia sing the praises of many of the restaurants of La Garrotxa who form part of the Cuina Volcànic family and share its philosophy.

The Carrilet cycle lane

The Carrilet cycle lane follows the route of the narrow gauge railway Olot - Girona - Sant Feliu de Guíxols. With an average gradient of 1.5%, the cycle lane crosses Olot, with the Sant Roc springs at the very start of the route; the Pedra Tosca Park in Les Preses; the different villages of La Vall d'en Bas, home to Francesc de Verntallat; Sant Feliu de Pallerols, with the river Brugent and its thick oak woods; and Cogolls stream and gorges in Les Planes d'Hostoles.

Jarrotxa

North of the river Fluvià and shared between the comarques of La Garrotxa, El Ripollès and L'Alt Empordà lies the Alta Garrotxa. This vast area (32,864.57 ha) of complex relief was include by the Catalan Government in 1992 in its Plan for the Areas of Natural Interest and in 2006 was included in the Natura 2000 network as a Special Protection Area for birds (SPA) and a Site of Community Interest (SCI). Owing to its diversity and singularity, it is one of the most important natural areas in the eastern pre-Pyrenees.

in the form of farms, isolated hamlets, churches and charcoal-making sites, scattered over the whole of the area.

Today, however, all are mute witness to the relevance that the traditional rural and agricultural skills once had for this area.

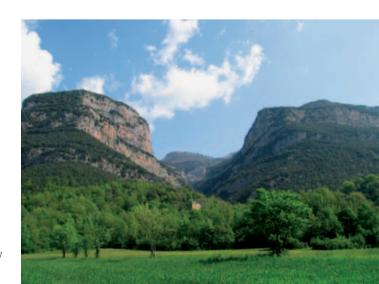

Places to visit

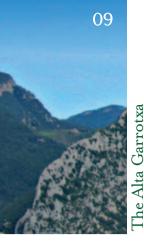

Aside from the many paths that criss-cross the area and offer visitors the possibility of discovering on foot many of its most spectacular places, there are a number of highly recommendable places that can be visited on foot or by car. Here we highlight a number of itineraries that can also be found on the web page of the Consortium of the Alta Garrotxa or at the information points.

Walkers can also follow the Itinerànnia GR-1 and GR-11 long-distance footpaths, the latter of which coincides with part of the old drover's road still used by herds of cattle to move from their winter pastures in the comarca of Pla de l'Estany to their high summer pastures in El Ripollès.

The Alta Garrotxa is an area of abrupt limestone mountains whose complicated relief features are the paradigm of the 'Garrotxa', a name which means literally 'rough, uneven land'. The land-scape is dominated by deeply incised valleys lined by sheer cliffs that are covered for the most part by thick holm and downy oak forests. The denizens of these forests and mountains include many highly significant species of flora and fauna.

Moreover, the Alta Garrotxa can boast a rich and important cultural heritage

For those who choose to travel by car, one of the most attractive places in the Alta Garrotxa is undoubtedly the village of Beget, with the church of Sant Cristòfol and its famous carved wooden Christ-figure. Other places of interest are the hamlet of Pera, which is accessible from both Beget and Oix by road, the Vall del Bac, Oix, Sadernes and – above all on a clear day – the sanctuary of Mare de Déu del Mont and the nearby ruined monastery of Sant Llorenç de Sous.

Sant Joan les Fonts

The access to Sadernes is closed to motor vehicles 24 hours a day from 16 March to 30 September, although every season this schedule may be modified according to the needs of the territory and the amount of visitors.

Recommendations:

- · Do not make loud noises.
- · Do not swim in the rivers if water levels are low.
- · Respect all animals and plants.
- · Respect private property.

For those on foot:

- · Follow the recommended routes.
- \cdot Wear sturdy footwear and carry plenty of food and water.
- · Plan your route beforehand and always carry a map.
- · You will enjoy the walks much more in spring and autumn.
- In summer, begin walking very early to avoid the midday heat.

For those in cars:

- · Do not drive at more than 30 km/hr along tracks.
- · Do not leave tracks or drive over open fields or pastures.
- · The two best options are:
 - The road from Oix to Beget.
 - The road climbing up to the sanctuary of Mare de Déu del Mont and the monastery of Sant Llorenç de Sous.

Please remember that:

- · Access by car onwards from Sadernes is restricted at certain times of year.
- · Climbing is strictly controlled throughout the whole area.
- People wishing to descend the gorges must inform the Consortium of the Alta Garrotxa beforehand (www.altagarrotxa.org)

It is forbidden to:

- · Light fires
- · Camp
- · Leave litter
- · Swim in the river at El Gomarell

The volcano Montolivet

The combination of relief, soils and climate found in La Garrotxa gives rise to highly varied and often exuberant vegetation, ranging from evergreen holm oak forests to dense beech forests, all of exceptional scenic value. In total, 1,178 species of flowering plants and 261 species of vertebrate animals have been recorded.

Walkers will enjoy the itineraries that pass through La Garrotxa Volcanic Zone Natural Park: most are signposted, the exception being the longest options that experienced walkers can follow with the help of the Natural Park's map-guide. These routes often connect and/or coincide with the marked paths of the Itinerànnia network of paths.

The volcano Montsacopa and church of Sant Francesc in the centre of Olot

La Garrotxa Volcanic Zone Natural Park boasts the best example of a volcanic landscape in the Iberian Peninsula. It contains over 20 lava flows and 40 volcanoes exhibiting different types of volcanic activity - weak effusive eruptions, moderately powerful Strombolian eruptions and powerful freatomagmatic eruptions - that are all protected under the umbrella of 28 natural reserves.

Vayreda's Alta Garrotxa

Marian Vayreda's novel La Punyalada provides one of the best ways of discovering the Alta Garrotxa. The places depicted by this 19th century author in the scenes from his famous novel have been joined in a discovery route that begins in Montagut and leads via Sadernes all the way to Sant Aniol d'Aguja. During the route we follow paths from the Itinerànnia footpath network to illustrate the triangle of love and death between Albert, Ivo and Coral·lí that Vayreda wove in his novel.

points of interest that walkers will come across on this route through the Alta Garrotxa, a wild area of deep valleys, spectacular cliffs and a cultural heritage of incalculable value.

Whilst we walk we can contemplate and visit some of the places so magnificently described by Marian Vayreda in La Punyalada:

"Never as in that year had the Aplec dels Francesos at Sant Aniol seemed to me so sad, despite a morning as beautiful as few others: the blue of the sky stretched pure as a veil above the cliffs as the sun's golden rays illuminated the playful tones of the verdant vegetation, freshly watered by the abundant spring rains that had penetrated as far as even the deepest roots of the oldest of trees."

Authentic Olot The museum of saints

Olot has a long tradition of producing religious images and there were once dozens of small workshops scattered throughout the city that manufactured images individually by hand. Today, the centre of this industry is located in one of Catalonia's most singular museums, the Olot Museum of Saints

Housed in a neo-Gothic building in the centre of the city, the Olot Museum of Saints shares premises with Art Cristià, a workshop of religious images whose activity is on display for visitors to see. Midweek visitors to the museum can watch as the workshop's craftsmen go about creating the different figures that the company produces. A visit to the Museum is an opportunity to witness all the different phases in the production of the images, from the moulding through to the painting and decoration.

The production of religious images was begun by Joaquim Vayreda, Josep Berga i Boix and Valentí Carrera and was an excellent way of providing work for the many students of the Olot Public School of Art. Today, the work produced by this workshop is to be found all around the world.

The first floor of the museum houses the permanent exposition, and includes examples of the pieces produced by the different workshops of Art Cristia, as well as elements of the famous farandula (procession) of Olot - also created by this company - such as the old and new giants. Here too is it worth visiting the display devoted to the nativity scenes that includes figures of great artistic value modelled by Ramon Amadeu and figures from the Renart Collection.

The writer Marian Vayreda lived in the building that today houses the museum. His office, where he wrote some of his best-known books such as Memories of the final Carline War and The Stab, classics of Catalan literature, has been preserved untouched and can be visited.

Near the Museum of Saints you will find the central market and Olot's main shopping streets. Home to shops of all kinds, Olot is characterized above all by the number of establishments that sell their own delicious home-produced gastronomical wares, all created with a generous dash of local pride.

One of the best-loved after-dinner drinks in Olot is ratafia, a sweet digestive liquor made from green walnuts and an abundance of mixed herbs and spices. Try it and see! And what better to accompany a glass of ratafia than a slice of coca de llardons (sweet bread-cake with pork cratchings), or tortell d'anis (a circular anis-flavoured spongecake) that the local shops bake on their premises. An afternoon snack could consist of coca or tortell with a slice of chocolate or cured sausage. Don't forget either the traditional chocolates from Olot that can be bought near the Museum of Saints.

The city centre is home to various traditional bakers who still use wood-fired ovens, as well as a number of butchers selling their homecured charcuterie. Finally, a visit to the "Mercat" square, with 15 market stands, 7 shops and one supermarket, is a must. The market works with 9 local producers and is known for its wide variety of local and top quality produce offer and excellent facilities.

On every street corner in Olot. there are shops where you'll find everything you need; from food and top quality ingredients to a wide selection of products (household equipment, fashion and accessories, health and beauty...)

Saint James' Way

The Saint James' Way is one of Europe's great cultural treasures and its waymarked route allows pilgrims (and others!) to visit on foot many of the country's most important historical points of interest. In Catalonia it begins at Sant Pere de Rodes and crosses Catalonia to connect with the Aragonese branch of the Saint James' Way near the town of Fraga. A small but fascinating part of the Way passes through La Garrotxa and follows a stretch of the Carrilet cycle lane.

The Saint James' Way enters La Garrotxa at Les Planes d'Hostoles and continues through Sant Feliu de Pallerols and Sant Esteve d'en Bas on its way towards El Grau.

To reach the town of Vic, the waymarking takes walkers on the climb from Hostalets d'en Bas to L'Hostal del Grau via Falgars, although another option is to follow the Itinerannia marking and climb along the old paved trail linking Olot and Vic that climbs directly to L'Hostal del Grau.

The Saint James' Way is marked with the blue signposting used throughout Europe, along with a representation of a cockle shell. Some stretches are also marked with the yellow arrows that indicate all of the different stretches of the Way. These marks have been painted by the association Friends of the Saint James' Way, but should not be confused with the yellow markings of the Itinerànnia network (which are smaller and not as arrow-shaped).

The Saint James' Way also passes through Olot, which makes this city an excellent starting or finishing point for walkers and pilgrims.

The Way has been classified as of 'Cultural Interest' and has been recognised as a Primary European Cultural Itinerary by the European Institute of Cultural Itineraries, an institution linked to the Council of Europe. The various different branches of the Way have been declared World Heritage Sites by UNESCO.

The Romanesque churches of La Vall de Bianya

The traces of the history of La Vall de Bianya can be followed in this itinerary that visits the 15 Romanesque churches that decorate this peaceful corner of La Garrotxa.

Sant Martí de Capsec

The 15 Romanesque churches scattered throughout the Vall de Bianya provide this valley with touches of great beauty and are testimony to the way of life of the people that live there.

The route begins in La Canya and visits the valleys of Bianya, Sant Ponç and Bac before returning to La Canya. We recommend you take three whole days to visit all the churches, as well as all the other historical, cultural, architectural and natural features that you will discover along the ancient trails of La Vall de Bianya.

Santa Maria de Sacot

Did you know?

Many churches of the municipality to come off severely spoiled in the 15th century due to the earthquakes. The strongest were produced on the 15th March of 1427 and on the 2nd February of 1428.

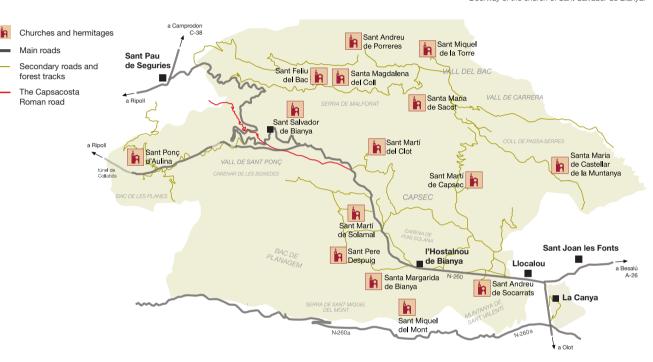

Don't miss

 If you decide to visit in mid-February you will also be able to visit the Fira del Farro in La Vall de Bianya, a gastronomical fair with examples of all the most typical culinary features of the comarca.

Doorway of the church of Sant Salvador de Bianya.

This route takes visitors along the Roman road of Capsacosta and past a variety of old farmhouses, some exhibiting the characteristics of local architecture, some the delights of the much more recent Art Nouveau. The valley also boasts exuberant natural landscapes of forest and meadows, which walkers can enjoy at leisure as they follow Bianya's waymarked footpaths.

Highly recommended is a visit to the Vall de Bianya Landscape Interpretation Centre in Sant Salvador de Bianya. This interpretation and information centre for the valley offers visitors exhibitions, the chance to purchase local products, an audiovisual display and a pedagogical workshop, and is also the starting point for guided visits to Sant Salvador de Bianya, the valley's Romanesque churches and the Roman Road.

Keeping cool in La Garrotxa

The intense summer heat is an incentive to search for places to cool off, places where you can rest and at the same time get to know some of the other delights of La Garrotxa. These places are accessible on foot, by bike or by car; furthermore, practically all the towns in La Garrotxa have shady picnic areas, all in beautiful settings and some even with swimming pools. Here we recommend a number of spots in La Garrotxa that you can resort to when you need to cool down.

Besalú

The river Fluvià passes through Besalú and is a good place to cool down, although the river is not considered as such to be a good bathing area. There are two picnic sites: one under the bridge and accessible on foot from the main car-park and the other next to the river, accessible from Prat de Sant Pere, the starting point for Besalú's Anella Verda (green ring).

Sant Joan les Fonts

Sant Joan les Fonts is one of the towns most closely connected to water in La Garrotxa. It takes its name from the multitude of natural springs (fonts) found in the municipality. The presence of water (although there is no bathing zone in the town) and lava flows are the most characteristic features of this town. It is highly recommended to discover "Ruta de les Fonts i Verlets " irrigated by the water gushing from the fountains of Mulleres and Fontfreda; and Molí Fondo, an old paper factory with a waterfall that crashes over a small basalt cliff formed by the lava emmited by the volcanoes in Batet and La Garrinada.

The municipality has two picnic areas, one next to the sports area and the other next to the nursery.

Alta Garrotxa

The landscape of the Alta Garrotxa is one of the many attractions of this comarca. Walks through this Area of Natural Interest can be combined with a dip in the municipal swimming baths in Tortellà, Montagut or Maià de Montcal.

Olot

The Aiguamoixos de la Moixina (marshy woodland known to locals as La Moixina) and Parc Nou are two beauty spots in Olot where it is easy to find a moment of peace and quiet. Here, the branches of the centuries-old trees will protect you from the rigours of the of midday sun; alternatively, head for the springs at Les Tries or Sant Roc, or the recreation area at Tossols-Basil.

Tortellà

The park of Can Santaló and the main square behind the church are two of the coolest spots in Tortellà. Another shady spot is the spring of Can Cosí near the medieval bridge of El Pont de Llierca.

Don't miss

- The municipal swimming baths in Besalú, Castellfollit de la Roca, Maià de Montcal, Montagut, Olot, Les Preses, Les Planes d'Hostoles, Sant Feliu de Pallerols, Sant Joan les Fonts, Tortellà and La Vall d'en Bas.
- The traditional Tossols-Basil swim is held every last Sunday in August, in which participants swim a stretch of the river Fluvià.

The river Fluvià at Castellfollit de la Roca

Santa Pau

The waterfalls and bathing pools (gorgs) of Can Batlle can be reached from Santa Pau by following Natural Park itinerary 14. This route (12 km) begins in Santa Pau and after passing by these waterfalls returns to the village via the sanctuary of Els Arcs. For a shorter walk, leave the village via Sant Martí and you will reach the waterfalls and bathing pools after a walk of 8 km.

The headwaters of the river Brugent in Sant Feliu de Pallerols

Vall d'en Bas

Near Sant Privat d'en Bas there is a picnic spot accessible by car known as 'Els Pins', which has tables, barbeques and a bar. You can either park in the village of Sant Privat itself and walk the remaining 500 m to the picnic site or drive all the way to the picnic site. The path that leads to the bathing pools starts from beneath the pines at the picnic site.

If you have a little longer you can also head for two of this municipality's best vantage points: Sant Miquel de Castelló, accessible –also on foot– from Hostalets d'en Bas, and Fontanils, accessible from Puigpardines.

I es Preses

The swimming pool in Les Preses is one of the coolest places in summer in this town. Its modern installations offer shade and services, as well as a complete gamut of activities: night swimming, open-air cinema, live music, and so on. The Pedra Tosca Park is another relaxing spot in Les Preses. Its maze of paths, dry-stone walls and old stone huts offer a landscape that changes throughout the year and enables visitors to forget (albeit briefly) their troubles and concentrate on the wonderful restoration work that merited, amongst other awards, the Rosa Barba European Award for Landscape Architecture.

Sant Feliu de Pallerols

The river Brugent, a tributary of the river Ter, passes through the centre of Sant Feliu de Pallerols in the Hostoles valley. Around 50 natural springs are dotted around this municipality: the Vern, Rocalba and La Fàbrega fonts are just three of the natural springs that are easily reached on foot, by bike or by car. The best bathing spots are the Gorg d'en Duran and Gorg de la Mola: to get to these delightful spots, park at La Torre and continue on foot or by mountain bike. Another popular place to visit are Balmes de la Torra, a group of caves.

Les Planes d'Hostoles

The river Brugent has created many good bathing spots in and around the town of Les Planes. The best are at Gorg de la Plana at the entrance to the town in the area known as La Plana, and Gorg de Santa Margarida, on the outskirts of the town next to the Pirene factory. Also worth a visit is the waterfall at Molí dels Murris, 1 km after the turn-off to Els Cogolls.

Monastery of Sant Joan les Fonts

Medieval La Garrotxa

Castles and monasteries were at the centre of life in the Middle Ages. Although some of their splendour has waned, today La Garrotxa still maintains vestiges of that past in towns and villages such as Sant Joan les Fonts, Santa Pau and Besalú.

Juvinyà castle in Sant Joan les Fonts

We begin this medieval route in Sant Joan les Fonts and one of the first places we recommend you visit is the church of the old Benedictine monastery. To reserve a visit, please call: 972 29 05 07

Declared a National Monument, this monastery boasts three naves and porch covered by a late atrium. Also of note are the Romanesque baptismal font decorated with bas relief and a carved Christ-figure, the original of which is kept in the Diocesan Museum in Girona.

Dating from the same era is the medieval bridge that joins the old part of Sant Joan and the parish church to the Castanyer quarter. Built from volcanic rock, the bridge over the river Fluvià consists of a single large arch with two smaller lateral arches. Nearby we find the oldest Romanesque civil building in Catalonia, the castle of Juvinyà, a fortified manor house that was declared a Monument of National Interest in 1972. In recent years the building has been completely restored and now that has been converted into the Sant Joan les Fonts Territorial Interpretation Centre.

The whole of the village of Santa Pau merits special attention. The historical centre is presided over by El Castell de la Baronia (the Baron's castle), which is mentioned in documents from the 13th century onwards. Square in shape, this building today consists of a central courtyard and adjoining quarters that is the result of additions made between the 13th and 15th centuries. To the south we find the triangular-shaped Plaça Major, once known as the Firal dels Bous (the 'oxen fairground') since it was used as a marketplace and fairground. This medieval square, which has remained practically unchanged since the first decades of the 14th century, is one of the best conserved such squares in Catalonia.

Besalú, the third stop on this medieval route, is one of the best preserved medieval towns in Catalonia and boasts religious and civil buildings (for example, the monastery of Sant Pere) of great interest. Founded in 977 and consecrated in 1003, the façade of Sant Pere is renowned for a highly original window adorned with the figures of two lions, symbols of the power and the protection provided by the church, which stand, respectively, on a monkey and a naked man, representations of evil and paganism.

In the same square as Sant Pere is Casa Comella, thought to be one of the best conserved Romanesque civil buildings in Catalonia. Behind Sant Pere stands the Hospital de Sant Julià (in fact, a hostel for travellers) with a 12th century façade, while a little further away are the Romanesque church of Sant Vicenç, with transitional elements between the Romanesque and Gothic, the Cúria Real and the Collegiate church of Santa Maria, two further examples of the wonderful cultural heritage of Besalú. The Pont Vell (old bridge), dating from the 11th century and reconstructed a number of times over the centuries, is 105 m long and 30 m high; as the main gate into Besalú it is the true symbol of this marvellous medieval town.

Nevertheless, visitors should not leave Besalú without having first visited the mikvah and synagogue. Discovered in 1964, the former is the only example of Jewish purification baths to have been found in Spain and only the third of the ten ever found in Europe. The ongoing archaeological digs in Besalú are continuingly throwing up new surprises in this beautiful town.

The best viewpoints in La Garrotxa

Another way to discover La Garrotxa is to climb up high for a bird's-eye view over the comarca. Mare de Déu del Mont in the Alta Garrotxa, the sanctuary of La Salut near Sant Feliu de Pallerols, the volcano Montsacopa in Olot, Xenacs recreational area near Les Preses, the basalt cliff at Castellfollit de la Roca and Santa Maria de Finestres near Santa Pau are some of the nest natural viewpoints in La Garrotxa and all provide incredible panoramas of the comarca and its landscapes.

- The recreational area of Xenacs in Les Preses provides an atypical view of La Garrotxa and is one of the best places anywhere for getting a bird's-eye view of Croscat and the other volcanoes in the area. As well, its height of 905 m makes it an ideal place for contemplating the fertile plain of Vall d'en Bas and the Alta Garrotxa, as well as the high peaks of the eastern Pyrenees and if weather permits Cap de Creus and the sea at Roses. Viewpoint of Xenacs: Every Monday during all the year the barrier of the access is closed.

Following the lava flows

Another of the many attractions of La Garrotxa are its many lava flows emitted by the local volcanoes. Once solidified, the Fluvià and other local rivers In conjunction with the wind and rain have eroded the lava into spectacular cliffs at Castellfollit de la Roca and El Boscarró and Fontfreda in Sant Joan les Fonts. These two walks provide a glimpse of the landscapes of the valleys of La Garrotxa, whose forest-lined rivers are replete with interesting evidence of an all-but forgotten industrial past.

- In Sant Joan les Fonts: a visit to the Romanesque monastery and the Juvinyà castle is a must. On the night of Sant Joan (June 23-24) the Nit de les Dones d'Aigua (Night of the Water Women), a show combining theatre and dance, is performed.

Did you know ...?

The basalt cliff consists of a number of superimposed lava flows, which, once they have cooled, form an extremely hard rock known as basalt. As it cools, the lava contracts and cracks appear that form the hexagonal columns.

Castellfollit de la Roca atop its basalt cliff

Castellfollit de la Roca

One of the lava flow routes starts and ends at Castellfollit de la Roca, whose old quarter is perched high up on a basalt cliff formed by the superimposition of two lava flows. The route begins in Plaça Catalunya and heads along narrow streets into the old town. As you drop down to the bridge over the river Fluvià, from where there is a spectacular view of the basaltic cliff, your route coincides with the Via Annia, a Roman road.

How to visit? the trail to the lava-flows is designed to be walked and is marked with signs from La Garrotxa Volcanic Zone Natural Park. If we take the route of the three lava flows we can join the route of 'les Fonts' and 'Verlets', following recovered old paths. La Ruta de les Fonts i Verlets is also for walkers, although most of the trails are also suitable for bikes.

How to get there: there are car-parks on the outskirts of both towns; take one of the exits from the C-66 or A-26 west of Besalú

Duration: 45 min Natural Park itinerary 13 in Castellfollit de la Roca; 1h 35 min following Natural Park itinerary 16 in and around Sant Joan les Fonts

Accessibility: unlike the trail to the lava flows, La Ruta de les Fonts i Verlets is suitable for both wheelchairs and pushchairs/prams.

Observations: the Sant Joan les Fonts itinerary is rough underfoot and appropriate footwear is necessary. This itinerary is not possible after heavy rain as the river cannot be crossed. The Castellfollit de la Roca itinerary is much easier underfoot. Both are essentially flat except for: the walk from the river up to Castellfollit (55 m) and the walk down to Molí Fondo (25 m) after Sant Joan les Fonts

Sant Joan les Fonts

The second itinerary departs from the Tourism Office in Sant Joan les Fonts following directions to Molí Fondo – Boscarró, a site transformed from a river environment to an igneous rock area. The first and second lava flows took place 700,000 and 150,000 years ago respectively. The last and most recent stream of lava was recorded 130,000 years ago. The result of the three lava flows has lead to a 5 hectare area of geological interest.

A tunnel of lava has been identified in the second of the three flows of lava. The pressure derived from the great quantity of lava streaming, caused a deformation or abscess on the tunnel's ceiling, generating small mounds of solidified lava. The erosion of the 'Fluvià' river at 'Molí Fondo' has uncovered these unique geological formations in the volcanic area of la Garrotxa and continental Europe.

Jewish Besalú

Besalú oozes history from every corner: every street, square and building provides clues to the town's past and the people that have lived there through the centuries. The Jewish community that thrived from the end of the 9th to the 15th century is a case in point and its valuable historical legacy can be appreciated on this route through the call, Besalú's Jewish quarter that has it origin in the Jewish community who lived there in centuries past.

Olot and its volcanoes

The city of Olot spreads out around the base of one of La Garrotxa's best known volcanoes - Montsacopa - and climbing its slopes is a perfect way to rediscover nature without actually leaving the city. Also known as Sant Francesc, this volcano is a reminder of the landscape that surrounds you in this surprising comarca and one of the best vantage points over Olot. A second must for visitors to Olot looking to enjoy the natural wonders of this comarca is the Parc Nou, home to the Museu dels Volcans.

- Once you have visited the streets and squares of the old centre of Olot, take time out to climb one of the symbols of this city - the volcano Montsacopa or Sant Francesc - whose outline with church and watch towers looms characteristically behind the old city. It is only accessible on foot, but it is worth climbing for the view alone, and visitors should also take a turn around the lip of its crater and enjoy the 360° view of other points of interest in Olot - the volcanoes Garrinada and Aiguanegra and the peaks of Bassegoda and Mare de Déu del Mont in the distance to the east. The church of Sant Francesc was built at the end of the Peninsula War in the 19th century on the site of a military building, while the watch towers date from the era of the Carline Wars, also in the 19th century.
- If the visit to Montsacopa has awoken an interest in the volcanoes, then we suggest you head for Parc Nou where, in the basement of

On the trail of the Remences

The revolt of the Remences - a peasant uprising against their lords and the abusive mals usos (feudal obligations) - took place in La Garrotxa during the second half of the 15th century. One of the most outstanding reminders of this period is the castle of Hostoles that, according to the historian Vicenc Vives, is "the most notable mountain fortress of the Remença resistance". Today, this castle is the focal point for understanding this revolt, led by Francesc de Verntallat from the village of El Mallol in LaVall d'en Bas. This route takes you through the Hostoles and Bas valleys and onto Santa Pau, following in the footsteps of the Remença peasants as they fought for their freedom.

trance to the village of Hostalets a further monument to this peasant leader can be seen.

The next stop on this route is Sant Feliu de Pallerols, where in the old centre of this town (the old sagrera) you can see the house in which Francesc de Verntallat died. Also of interest in this town is the mill Molí de la Conqueta, where the peasants who decided to rebel against the abuses they were subjected to by their feudal lords once worked so ceaselessly. Within the limits of the municipality of Sant Feliu de Pallerols lies the castle of Hostoles, the main fortification in the valley and one the principal strongholds of the feudal system in the valley. Francesc de Verntallat took and converted the castle - today in ruins - into his headquarters during the first Remença revolt, and it was to remain in the hands of the rebels until after the second Sentence of Guadalupe. Today, the only visible remains of this symbol of Catalan history, documented from 1020, are parts of the walls, part of the main cylindrical tower and the cistern.

The castle of Hostoles and those of Puig-alder and Colltort stood on the frontier between the countdoms of Besalú and Girona: Puig-alder. also in the municipality of Sant Feliu de Pallerols, is mentioned in 1020 in the testament of Bernat Tallaferro and by 1184 a church dedicated to Sant Salvador had also been built on the same lofty site. Restored a few years ago, attached to the church there is a small building where people can sleep and from where there are splendid views across the valleys of Vallac and Bastons.

The castle of Colltort, documented from 1017, also provides splendid views across La Garrotxa. Today, it too is ruined but gazes down over the route to Santa Pau, another of the village in La Garrotxa that was marked by the revolt of the Remences.

The Capsacosta Roman road

A good way of reaching La Vall de Bianya is to walk the Capsacosta Roman road. Transited since time immemorial, in recent years this road was used to drive cattle in summer to their high Pyrenean pastures. Constructed by the Romans as a branch of the great Via Augusta that led from Rome across the Pyrenees and into southern Spain, it was once the only link between the valleys of Bianya and Camprodon.

The only remaining Roman part of this road that still exists is a 8-km stretch that runs from Sant Pau de Segúries (in El Ripollès) to the Pas dels Traginers in La Vall de Bianya (La Garrotxa). Nevertheless, a lot of this stretch is still paved and the gutters, bridges, water deposits, and associated guarries and hostels are still perfectly visible.

Walk this route with its many hidden charms and travel back 2,000 years in time!

Former quarry in the volcano Croscat

The heart of La Garrotxa Volcanic Zone Natural Park

This route offers an alternative way of discovering three of the most-visited places in La Garrotxa Volcanic Zone Natural Park.

The path from the Santa Margarida car-park heads northwards across the road (GI-524, Olot-Santa Pau) and then coincides with Natural Park itinerary 15 (Grederes del Croscat) as far as the turn-off to Can Passavent.

The volcano Croscat

Croscat is a Strombolian volcano and its 160 m in height make it the highest volcanic cone in the Iberian Peninsula. For many years one of its flanks was guarried and today an impressive scar - that can be visited by following itinerary 15 - remains as a reminder of the once active quarry (gredera). This a very fragile site and visitors should not leave the marked paths. On the flanks of the volcano stands Can Passavent Information Centre, where there is a permanent display about the restoration of the volcano. After contouring around the former municipal rubbish tip (now closed and sealed), the path drops gently to the car park at Can Serra.

At Can Serra, the itinerary crosses under the road and takes you down a short flight of steps into the Fageda d'en Jordà.

2 The Fageda d'en Jordà

The famous Fageda d'en Jordà is a beech forest growing at low altitude (550 m) upon the rugged undulating lava flow emitted by the volcano Croscat, which is characterised by numerous scattered lumps and hummocks (known as tossols) that in some cases are over 20 m high.

After leaving the Fageda, the path takes you onto Coll de Can Batlle and Sant Miquel Sacot, the latter a church of Romanesque origin dating from the 11th century. From here, it drops down to Pla de Sacot and then climbs up to Collet de Bassols on the south-west flank of the volcano of Santa Margarida.

3 The volcano Santa Margarida

Santa Margarida is a freato-magmatic volcano, whose explosion opened up a wide circular crater in whose midst stands today the eponymous Romanesque church. In the case of Santa Margarida, the explosion opened a broad circular crater in which the chapel dedicated to Santa Margarida was built. Today, the crater floor is pastureland, while the flanks of the volcano are covered in evergreen holm oak on the sunny south-facing side and mixed deciduous forest on the cooler north-facing slopes. From here this itinerary continues onto the car-park at Santa Margarida, a section that links to Itinerary 3 (Can Xel-Santa Pau).

To enjoy this route to the full, we recommend that you visit in spring, summer or winter, since the autumn colours attract large numbers of visitors to this part of the Natural Park.

Did you know...?

Groups who visit Croscat must have made a reservation (Tel.: 972 19 50 94) and be accompanied by an accredited Natural Park guide, or have received authorisation from the Natural Park (Tel.: 972 26 81 12). Another point of interest on this route is the Romanesque church of Sant Miquel Sacot (11th century). The spring at Collelldemunt (not drinking water) in the Santa Margarida car-park is the only source of drinking water on the whole route.

Don't miss

The other walking itineraries that link up with this route: Natural Park itineraries 3 (Olot-Can Xel), 5 (Can Xel-Colltort) and the marked paths of the Itinerannia network, which provide access to many more interesting places in the La Garrotxa, both in and outside the Natural Park. The Bosc de Tosca and, more specifically, the Pedra Tosca Park in Les Preses, is a unique rural landscape of great ecological interest. It stands on the lava flow emitted by the volcano Croscat and one of its most outstanding features are its extraordinary dry-stone walls.

Villages with charm

The medieval village of Santa Pau. On the following page, Carrer Teixeda of Hostalets d'en Bas

Despite the multiple attractions – landscape, cuisine and its people – of La Garrotxa, there are some places in this comarca that have a truly unique air about them. This is the case of the charming villages you will discover if you decide to follow this route through Besalú, Riudaura and Santa Pau.

Sant Privat d'en Bas

Besalú has so many attractions that it is hard to know where to begin in what is one of the most singular medieval towns in Catalonia: nevertheless, you ought not to miss its unique Jewish quarter, the church/monastery of Sant Pere with its exceptional ambulatory, the church of Sant Vicenç with a lateral gothic chapel devoted to the True Cross, the façade of the old church/hostel of Sant Julià, the medieval house of Casa Cornella and the gothic hall in the Cúria Real. Other charming villages include Sant Esteve d'en Bas, the capital of the Bas Valley, graced by a Plaça Major with a 12th century Romanesque church with interesting capitols and the oldest Christ Majesty figure in Catalonia; Hostalets d'en Bas, beloved for the delightful balconies decorated by geraniums in summer that run along Carrer Teixeda; Joanetes, with its church devoted to Sant Romà set against a background of the mountains of Puigsacalm; Puigpardines, once an important medieval monastery; and Sant Privat d'en Bas, La Pinya and El Mallol, three further charming villages that add to the delights of this route.

Don't miss

Although its origins are lost in the mists of time, the dance of El Gambeto is still performed in Riudaura on Whitsunday. El Gambeto begins with eight mixed pairs dancing to the music of the Ball del Roser, the men wearing top hats and gambeto (a long black coat that reaches down to their feet) and the women long skirts and white hoods. After a while, the initial participants invite those watching to join in the dance with them.

Did you know ...?

A good reason to follow this route at the beginning of December is the relatively recent Sant Nicolau Fair in El Mallol, held every December 6th and today one of the most visited of all fairs in La Garrotxa.

Riudaura

The medieval layout of its streets and the attractive surrounding landscapes make Riudaura another 'must-see' village in La Garrotxa. Wandering through this village you will discover Plaça Gambeto, buildings such as Can Bago and the ancient chapel of Sant Marçal, today the town hall and doctor's, and streets such as La Rutlla, d'Olot, La Terrica and Rompeculs that all go to make Riudaura one of the most charming villages in La Garrotxa. It lies in the valley of the Riera de Riudaura, enclosed by the mountain of Sant Miguel del Mont. Coll de Coubet with its abandoned hostel of La Cantina, Coll de Canes and the mountain of Santa Magdalena de Cambrils. The mountains of Puig de l'Ofrena, Puig de la Miranda and La Rauta separate Riudaura from La Vall d'en Bas.

Santa Pau, the final stop on this route through the villages with charm in La Garrotxa, was declared of Historical and Artistic Importance in 1971 and today the village exhibits a typical medieval street plan, with walls, irregular streets, evocative corners and buildings of

As elsewhere in La Garrotxa, local cuisine is important in Santa Pau and the star ingredient is the fesol, a small white haricot bean. Cultivated in the local volcanic soil, the fesols from Santa Pau are renowned for their quality and at the beginning of each year they are the main attraction of a fair that brings thousands of people to Santa Pau. The Fira del Fesol coincides with the festivities of Santa Antoni and over the years has become one of Santa Pau's main tourist attractions.

great architectural interest. Situated at the foot of the Serra de Finestres, the village grew up around the Baron's castle, documented from the mid-13th century. When the Barony of Santa Pau was created in 1278, this castle became the main residence of the lords of the area and from 1300 onwards became the walled centre of the growing village of Santa Pau. Past and present meet in Santa Pau and a visit to this beautiful village will leave nobody indifferent!

Art Nouveau La Garrotxa

Art Nouveau left its mark on La Garrotxa. The Solà-Morales house in the centre of Olot, the school in Les Planes d'Hostoles and Mas la Riba (an old farmhouse) in La Vall de la Bianya are but three of the numerous examples of this artistic style that is so characteristic of Catalonia.

The Firal (market place) is home to two of the most important Art Nouveau buildings in Olot. On one side stands the Solà-Morales house. which was included in the European Art Nouveau route in 2000. Plant motifs predominate on the facade renovated by Lluís Domènech i Montaner in the period 1913-1916. The top storey has a gallery supported by 12 decorated columns and a barbican tiled with ceramics from Valencia; also on the façade there are two caryatids by the sculptor Eusebi Arnau. From this house, another of the most eye-catching buildings in Olot - the Gaietà-Vila house at the other end of the Firal - is visible. This latter house was designed by the architect Alfred Paluzie and has medieval elements such as crenellations on its roof. Other Art Nouveau buildings in Olot include Casa Pujador, Casa Gassiot and Casa Masramon, the latter the work of the architect Rafel Masó. This architect also designed Mas la Riba in L'Hostalnou de la Vall de la Bianya, a village that can also boast an Art Nouveau altar piece and entrance door in the Romanesque church of Sant Salvador de Bianva and the Art Nouveau Casa de la Coromina.

Did you know...?

Art Nouveau (known as Modernisme in Catalonia) was a cultural movement that influenced many architects and decorative artists. It was characterised by a dominance of curved over straight lines, the use of rich detailed decorations and plant motifs, a delight in asymmetry and a dynamic use of forms. Most of La Garrotxa Art Nouveau route can be explored from the Carrilet cycle lane.

Art Nouveau also made its presence felt in the Hostoles valley. In Sant Feliu de Pallerols Can Casas is decorated with coloured glass, painted ceramics and worked wood and iron, which dates this building - today a chemist - from the beginning of the 20th century and the end of the Art Nouveau period. of Les Planes d'Hostoles, the first Art Nouveau building you will find is the school, opened in 1918. It stands on the left-hand side of the road from Sant Feliu and one of the peculiarities of its façade is that the signs that differentiate the boys and girls entrances are still visible. A little further along and on the same side of the road stands Can Garay, converted into a hotel with an Art Nouveau ambience to mark its centenary. Continuing on towards Girona, we find Torre Dusol. It was built between 1920 i 1922 and today a well-known restaurant and conference centre known how Torre dels Til·lers. Other buildings in the town that are reminiscent of Art Nouveau include Can Cadet and Can Noguer.

The Romanesque churches of Maià de Montcal and Beuda

Maià de Montcal and Beuda are both good examples of La Garrotxa's valuable cultural heritage and their wonderful Romanesque churches are the perfect excuse to visit this part of La Garrotxa, close to the border with the neighbouring comarca of the Alt Empordà. This route takes you to nine different churches, all dating from in the 9th-12th centuries.

Sant Feliu de Beuda

The route begins in Beuda at Sant Pere de Lligordà, a12th-century church with a south-facing main door, a rectangular nave and a semi-circular apse. We continue on to Santa Maria de Palera, another 12th-century church with a semi-circular east-facing apse whose a nave is covered by a barrel-roof reinforced by two transversal arches. It was once home to a Gothic carved alabaster Mother of God, which today is to be found in the Girona Art Museum.

The next point of interest is Sant Sepulcre de Palera, a fascinating 11th-century Romanesque church that was consecrated in 1085. It has a central nave covered by a barrel-roof and aisles covered by half-barrel roofs, all supported by rectangular pillars and leading on to their corresponding apses.

Don't miss

-This peaceful corner of La Garrotxa has, aside from its numerous religious buildings, a number of Catalonia's most remarkable manor houses (for example, Noguer de Segueró).

Did you know ...?

The Romanesque is an architectural and artistic style that appeared in the 12th century (above all in architecture) whose main features are its functionality and austerity. Romanesque buildings are characterised by their low roofs, thick walls without decoration or windows, barrel-vaulted roofs and rounded arches.

Santa Magdalena or Santa Maria de Jonqueres

Another attraction of this route is the 12th-century church of Sant Feliu de Beuda, well known for its valuable 12th-century font decorated with basrelief figures and blind arches. From here we continue to Santa Maria de Segueró, an 11-th century Romanesque church with a single nave and a polychrome image of the Virgin Mary (14th century) carved in alabaster.

At this point we enter into the municipality of Maià de Montcal with its church of Sant Vicenç, dating from 978. It boasts a rectangular nave and a circular east-facing apse and singular ironwork on the church door. Next, the route takes us to Santa Magdalena de Maià (13th century), the former church of the old priory of Santa Maria de Jonqueres (13th century), located at the eastern limit of la Garrotxa on the top the hill of Santa Magdalena. It has a barrel roof and an apse with a quarter barrel roof.

We finish the route at the church of Sant Martí (12th century) in the hamlet of Dosquers, which boasts a
